Perhaps the best Crown
Is that which is bestowed by God but it is not that of gold nor of silver but of an old age
In which the gold is the white hair
For the person who wears it has worshipped his life in his way Worshipped as if he saw him slowly and steadly growing certain Certain of his presence surrounding him
So the Crown of old age was bestowed So might he continue his worship wearing that crown
And beautiful is he with that Crown.
